I'm considering on buying a 98 gmc sierra z71. It has a 5.7L Vortec engine with about 302,000 miles on the original engine and a rebuilt tranny. The truck misses sometimes, especially in lower speeds. I think it has to do with the distributor and timing. Is it a good idea to buy something with that high of mileage. Would I only have to replace the engine if something went wrong?
